

And the hush was broken...

a book of the best entries

submitted by S1 and S2 pupils for The Pushkin Prizes in Scotland 2006

This anthology is a magical window on the world of young people during a period of great change in their lives. I'm hugely impressed by their caring concern for the world, delighted by their joie de vivre and awed by their insight and, often, wisdom. Scotland need not fear a shortage of excellent writers in the future.

Vivian French, author

The Pushkin Prizes in Scotland is a unique creative writing initiative which attracts hundreds of entries from all over the country.

Please order copies on the form below.

All proceeds from the sales of this anthology will go towards funding The Pushkin Prizes in Scotland in the future.
Your support is greatly appreciated.

...a remarkable project that encourages good writing among children in their early teens...

Scotland on Sunday

This celebration of writers and writing has lent a new perspective, and the possibility that they, as writers themselves, are part of a grand, global tradition.
